Practice

Danny Moore was called to the Bar in 1994 by the Middle Temple. He has an extensive criminal practice with an emphasis on prosecuting and defending multi defendant serious crime.

Danny Moore specialises in the prosecution and defence of serious sexual offences. He has experience of multi complainant and defendant cases, and cases involving abuse by professionals, institutional abuse and historic abuse. He has particular experience in cases involving young and vulnerable witnesses. He has also participated in vulnerable witness training and is currently assisting in devising a training programme for advocates at the Bar and HCAs as to how to deal with the issues arising in these types of cases.

He also has particular experience in cases involving allegations of fraud, money laundering, large scale drugs conspiracies and serious violence cases.

He has been instructed both by the prosecution and defence in cases of murder.

He receives instructions from a wide range of defence solicitors, CPS Kent and the Serious Crime Unit in Kent.

Mr Moore also undertakes advisory work on behalf of The Welsh CPS under the auspices of Operation Pallial. He has written numerous advices in relation to the charging of historic sexual offences against former care home staff.

Defence Counsel to Mr Graham, a colour sergeant in the British Army. Mr Graham was accused of stealing explosives, ammunition and other munitions and selling them to the criminal underworld in Glasgow.

Prosecution counsel in a series of trials of a family/gang of offenders who were carrying out a series of robberies, ram raids and substantial commercial thefts in the Kent area. All defendants were convicted and long prison sentences imposed. This case was prosecuted by the Serious Crime Unit in Kent.

Money Laundering/Fraud

Danny's experience in this area has genuine breadth and depth acting both for the prosecution and defence in multi-handed drug conspiracies and Fraud cases.

He is very familiar with ancillary matters such as forfeiture orders, obtaining compensation for consumers and seeking to limit recovery in contested proceeds of crime applications.

He recently negotiated a basis of plea in a large multi-defendant Class A drugs conspiracy case (R v D'Oliveira-Hillis and others). This basis later prevented the Crown from pursuing any confiscation proceedings.

He has an excellent knowledge of recent developments in confiscation legislation and case law especially on the topic of proportionality.
